7. Description:

According to the Clayton County Assessor, this building is estimated to have been built in 1916. Sanborn maps from 1913 and 1930 show a building with the same footprint erected sometime between these dates. The property was sold to William C. Reimer in 1921 who erected this structure as the west half of a similar building next door to the east. Together the structure was known as the "Reimer Building."

The Reimer Building (west half) at 118 West Bridge Street is an example of a Broad Front commercial building form. The 2-story building has rock-faced painted concrete block walls with a flat roof and low straight parapet across the front. The double-wide storefront is divided in half with shop doors centered in the middle and large plate glass display windows to either side. The west shop space appears to retain the original entrance door with a tall single light in the upper section and wood panel below. A steel I-beam separates the floors and the transom level of the storefront is infilled with wood boards. The upper level is divided in three bays with three groups of three 1/1 double-hung windows evenly spaced for the upper flats.

8. Significance:

The Reimer Building (west half) at 118 West Bridge Street is an example of a Broad Front commercial building form typical of downtown buildings in the years before and after World War I. The building is eligible for the National Register as a contributing resource in the Elkader Downtown Historic District under Criteria A and C. Under Criterion A, the district's commercial buildings are associated with the historic contexts developed for the downtown in the "Architectural and Historical Resources of the Elkader Downtown Historic District" Multiple Property Documentation form covering the years 1846 to 1960. The building is also eligible under Criterion C, as a contributing resource because of the commercial form it represents.

Elkader Downtown Historic District Background:

The town of Elkader was laid out in 1846 along the banks of the Turkey River approximately 16 miles upstream from the Turkey River's confluence with the Mississippi River. The town was surveyed and laid out in 1846 with the Original Town Plat filed in June 22, 1846 by Timothy Davis, Chester Sage and John Thompson, friends and business partners, who began operating a sawmill on North Front (Main) Street in 1845 before the town was even platted. By 1849 they had a successful flour mill in operation. The new town was named for Abd el-Kader, an Algerian freedom fighter and world figure who was admired by Davis. The principal building stimulating development in the 1840s and 1850s was the Elkader Mill. After 1860 when the Clayton County voters selected Elkader as the permanent county seat, the downtown saw a variety of merchants set up shops, several hotels open, a number of newspapers begin publication, and small manufacturing concerns get underway in the city center. Elkader numbered 440 residents in 1860.

The new county court house saw its first section completed in 1869 opposite the downtown. New limestone buildings were erected along both North and South Main Street with public halls frequently located on upper floors. During the 1870s and 1880s 2-story brick buildings began replacing frame business houses. A permanent railroad connection was completed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul RR in 1886 but service remained poor as Elkader was located at the end of a spur rather than along a main line route. A more important transportation improvement during the 1880s was the completion of the Keystone Bridge across the Turkey River in 1880. Its completion prompted a period of economic vitality and community investment. The community was officially incorporated two years later in 1891 and a new waterworks system and city well were completed in 1896. Electricity was rejected by locals until the end of the decade in 1900, however. In the meantime, new churches were built in 1897 for the Congregationalists on the east side of the river and in 1897-1899 for the Catholics on the west side of the river. Coupled with a series of major fires during the 1890s, the downtown saw a period of rebuilding with a new hotel and bank at the entrance to the business district at the turn of the century. The new opera house was completed on North Main Street while other 2 and 3-story brick blocks appeared both north and south of Bridge Street.

By 1900, Elkader's population stood at its peak of 1,321 – an increase of 77 percent during the decade of the 1890s. Development continued in the downtown before and after World War I but at a much slower pace. Floods and fires damaged the Elkader Mill in 1902, 1906 and 1908, but it was nevertheless rebuilt by Schmidt Brothers & Co., retaining a key employer and anchor for Elkader's downtown. The business district began to extend to the west before and after the war with the principal changes seen along West Bridge Street. Here livery stables and wagon shops were replaced by automobile dealerships, implement companies and filling stations. Five stations eventually located along West Bridge with a sixth one block to the south along First Street SW. The national economic depression of the 1930s was coupled by the closing of the Elkader Mill in 1939 following a major fire. Natural disasters after World War I included major floods in 1922, 1947, and 1958 with a tornado destroying section of South Main Street in 1958 as well.

Despite these natural and human made disasters, Elkader saw steady but modest population growth from 1,223 in 1920 to 1,526 in 1960. The impact of the automobile was seen in traffic patterns, parking patterns, and traffic signs and the introduction of electricity saw several generations of street lighting come and go. The popularity of the opera house waned and the first floor became the municipal fire station while two movie houses came and one stayed in the downtown drawing evening crowds for entertainment and shopping. As many as 130 people resided in downtown flats during this period. A good system of inter and intra-state highways connected Elkader and its downtown to other parts of the state and country in a way that railroads had never served the community. By 1960, downtown Elkader was well-established as one of several geographically dispersed retail centers serving Clayton County. Virtually every storefront was filled with start-up businesses or multi-generational family stores as Elkader's downtown achieved a stable and healthy status for local and countywide residents.

Historic Background Reimer Building (west half) at 118 West Bridge Street:

The Reimer Building (west half) at 118 West Bridge Street was built by Elkader lawyer, abstractor, and real estate investor, William C. Reimer. This section of the Reimer Building was built in ca. 1921 after he acquired the property from A.C. Stemmer. He previously acquired the other half of the property to build the east half of the Reimer Building at 110 West Bridge Street seven years earlier in 1914. The two building halves were held under joint ownership for a number of years with William Reimer transferring the property to his wife Lina in 1936.

The building held a number of businesses through the years and beginning in 1978 became home to "The Buttery," one of the first antique and gift shops to open Elkader. The original owners and operators were Florence and Brian Gifford. They sold the property to Jody and Mike Bown in 1995 who continue to own the property and business today in just the west half of the original Reimer Building.
